PROCEEDINGS STARTED FOR LIBRARY VOTE BY COUNCIL

Main St. Electrolier Cards Sent Out By City Attorney; Promotion Ass'n Seeks Anti-Handbill Law

Initiatory proceedings to place the $60,000 public library bond issue on the April 11 ballot were taken by the city council Monday night when the board introduced a resolution that "public interest and necessity" make it imperative that a new building be constructed.

The resolution was prepared and presented by City Attorney Albert Mansfield and was introduced by Councilman George McNulty and unanimously adopted on second of Councilman Charles Hildebrant.

This will be followed at the next meeting with the introduction of an ordinance calling the election, naming the election officials and fixing the polling places. The bonds will come before the people in the same election at which they will vote upon expiring councilship terms.

Additional time to remove its poles from Main street between Elm and El Camino Real was granted to the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company on request of L. C. Brown, resident manager. The extra period is required to complete a right of way on the rear of property for the poles.

Electroliers Discussed

Brown declared his company was willing to co-operate in the plan to install electroliers along Main street but asked that permission be given for the poles to remain until the lights were ready to go in.

City Attorney Mansfield said he had sent out postal cards asking the property owners under which act they wished to undertake the proceedings and that replies will be in by March 8.

The Redwood City Promotion Association, in letters addressed to City Clerk B. E. Myers and Mayor Daniel R. Stafford, asked that the city ordinance against distribution of handbills and other advertising matter be extended to include the residential district.

Handbills Hit

Councilman Charles Lambert said that the city would be "better off" if it had a strict ordinance on this subject. The promotion association declared that the yards of residents were littered with handbills and that it was no incentive to attempt to keep the yards beautiful if the practice is to continue.

Upon motion of Councilman Henry Beeger, seconded by Councilman Hildebrant, the communication was received and filed. Councilman Beeger then suggested that the sample ordinance submitted by W. H. Morrissey, president of the association, be submitted to the Redwood City Retailers for an expression from that body.

George Leonard and Charles Holt conferred with the council on the water bill owed the city for service to Emerald Lake, and a definite policy as to future bills was reached. The Emerald Lake men said outstanding bills totaled $1300, more than enough to meet the city's bill of $1100. It was agreed to meet current bills and to pay off the indebtedness in regular monthly installments.

INCOME TAX AID DUE MARCH 8-10

For the convenience of those who are required by law to file federal income tax returns, Deputy Collector A. B. McSweeney of the internal revenue service will be at the courthouse in Redwood City March 8 to 10, inclusive. He will assist taxpayers in preparing their returns. No charge will be made for this service.

Flower Display Attracts Many

Some 300 persons were guests at the formal opening Wednesday afternoon of the Rose Bud Flower Shop located on the state highway next to Taylor's Tamale Parlor. All women guests were presented with corsages from the flowers on display. These consisted of gorgeous stands of roses, gladiolus, lilies of the valley, carnations, narcissus, stock, snapdragons, and tulips. The feature display of the afternoon presented a banquet table adorned with golden-emerald roses. Potted plants of hyacinths, cyclamen, and cinerarias were used to complete the color scheme and add to the fragrance in the air. Two large floral pieces brought out very strikingly the artistic abilities of the proprietor, Mr. S. E. Woodward, who has established here following the sale of his two flower shops in Seattle.

S. F. JAIL MATTER PUT OVER FOR WEEK

Skyscraper Prison Is Suggested In Report Of Minority

With skyscraper and "wide open space" jail proposals before them, San Francisco supervisors Tuesday failed to reach a decision on the new $850,000 prison which is to replace the one at Ingleside. It was decided Monday afternoon to put the matter over for a week before a final decision is reached.

Two major solutions of the jail dilemma were offered and some of the supervisors, at least, had hoped to end the two years' argument by deciding on one of them. One was purchase of the 245-acre Sneath ranch in San Mateo county for $47,500. The other, a minority report submitted by Supervisor Shannon, called for construction of a skyscraper jail at Washington and Montgomery streets in San Francisco.

No Vote Taken

Opponents of the skyscraper plan asserted the site would cost $150,000 or more than three times the cost of the ranch. Neither plan was voted on.

Supervisor Canepa introduced a resolution stating that the Federal Government is considering building a prison in the San Francisco area, and Yerba Buena island would be an ideal spot for it, and the city might obtain permission to build a jail there.

The resolution was voted down.

Other Arguments

Supervisor Peyser urged the matter be put up to the people at the May primaries, but the motion failed of passage. One opponent of the ranch plan asserted municipal judges could not sentence persons to jail in another county. City Attorney O'Toole ruled to the contrary.

Adolph Uhl argued that the jail should be located at Candlestick point in the Bayview district and prisoners set work hauling the point into the tideland by wheelbarrows, a 75-year task by some estimates.

DECEIT CHARGED IN STOCK LAWSUIT

Accusations of "conspiracy, fraud and deceit" are made against State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson and other directors of the Virden Packing Company in a $16,800 lawsuit filed by Mrs. Etta Lichtenstein in Redwood City.

She declares that J.. A. Morris, a former director, told her the company was nearing bankruptcy and that if she did not sell 800 shares of capital stock which she held, that she would not only lose the money invested but would be held liable for the company's heavy debts.

On his advice, the plaintiff asserts, she agreed to sell the 800 shares which had a par value of $25 for $4, and received $3200 from Johnson in payment, the state treasurer having agreed to buy the stock, Morris told her.

Mrs. Lichtenstein said the fact was kept from her that Charles Virden, president of the company, was dying and that he had been insured for $1,000,000 for the benefit of the company. She sold the stock in December, 1931, and Virden died on January 23, 1932. The firm collected $732,000 on his death and paid a dividend of $8 per share on the stock February 26.

The damages asked are the amount between the sum paid her and par value of her stock.

Attorney J. Maxwell Peyser of San Francisco is representing the plaintiff.

KIN OF MEXICAN GRANTEE RESIDES ON BIT OF RANCH

Mrs. Guadalupe Valencia, who resides on the last parcel of an original Mexican grant in San Bruno, informed Roscoe D. Wyatt, manager of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, in an interview yesterday, that she is a granddaughter of the original grantee of the tract.

Jose Sanchez, in reward for his military services to Mexico, was given a 14,600-acre tract in the heart of the peninsula in 1838. It was the original Buri Buri rancho. The land lay between the bay and the crest of the hills, and from the north line of South San Francisco to the center of Burlingame. Today all that remains is a small triangular piece on which Mrs. Valencia resides. She is 88 and speaks English well, Wyatt said. She gave him some interesting historical information of early San Mateo county.

KIWANIANS' PLAY TICKETS AVAILABLE

Tickets for "Is Zat So," Kiwanis play to be produced March 18, will be placed in the hands of members of the club today by Amerigo Rossi, chairman of the play committee.

Kiwanians will have both 50 and 75 cent tickets, which can be exchanged for reserved seats on or after March 11 at Ryan's drug store. The play is to be given in the Sequoia high school auditorium.

Although no systematic canvas for the sale of tickets is to be made, it is hoped that each member will dispose of at least 20 tickets. The entire proceeds go to the club's fund for the Community Cupboard.

In selecting a play this year, the committee desired to get one of the best comedies obtainable. The club won plaudits in the production of "The Whole Town's Talking" last year.

LIBRARY BONDS TO HAVE SUPPORT OF R. C. MOOSE LODGE

Formal endorsement of the $60,000 public library bond issue on the April 11 ballot was given by Redwood City Lodge No. 1112, Loyal Order of Moose, at a meeting Wednesday night in Foresters' Hall.

Plans were furthered for the reception of the supreme dictator of the national lodge, Fred Zihlman, who is coming from headquarters at Mooseheart, Ill., on March 23. Representatives from lodges in the bay region the peninsula, and from the northern part of the state will gather at the Moose Club on Market street, opposite Franklin street, in San Francisco, to greet him. There will be no meeting here on that night. The hall is being given to the lodge auxiliary, the Women of Moose, for a card party.

The nominating committee has been named. It includes the officers, who are E. A. Botill, past dictator; Charles Holt, dictator; Merton Hughes, vice-dictator; James Davis, prelate; Manfred Walzberg, secretary; B. E. Hotchkiss, treasurer; Al Davies, Leo Fuller and C. D. Swett, trustees. Seven members are also included. They are A. J. Stebenne, E. R. Rice, Krank Kohnen, Martin Miller, F. M. Matthews, Bert Maehl and G. B. Hoss of Menlo Park. This committee will meet one-half hour before the regular hour at the next two meetings to discuss nominees. Open nomination of officers will be made at the meeting on March 30, and election takes place on April 6.

A musical comedy, "Scandal-Proof," is planned for April 7 and 8 at the Sequoia Theater under the direction of Fred W. Moberly, who coached the Moose show, "Whose Baby," here last year. The cast is being selected by him and the show committee, composed of A. J. Stebenne, Al Davies, Martin Miller and Manfred Walzberg. Rehearsals are scheduled to begin within a few days.

The public is invited to the installation of officers on April 27.

A dance is to be given in Foresters' Hall on Saturday night, and other dance dates are March 19, April 2, 16 and 30.

A surprise initiation is being arranged.

BURLINGAME, Mar. 1.—A group of well known society women has determined to establish an employment relief project on Burlingame avenue, it was announced today. Articles will be made and sold. They will be things not carried by local merchants, so as not to compete with the latter.

STILL TENDERS GIVEN TERMS; P.G.E. MEN FREE

Because they operated a large still in a Belmont house, five men today began serving jail terms totaling 22 months and were ordered to pay fines amounting to $2300.

At the same time, charges of conspiring to violate the prohibition law, against two Pacific Gas and Electric Company employes were dismissed. They were S. M. Michael and Edward Ford, who installed the electrical equipment used in operating the still.

The five liquor law violators were nabbed on June 4. They entered guilty pleas before Federal Judge Harold Louderback in San Francisco Monday, and were sentenced as follows:

Lewis Cesini, $500 fine and nine months' imprisonment; Jack Berray, $600 and six months; William Yount and George Hutchinson, $600 and 30 days each; Peter Dardino, $600 and six months. The prison terms will be served in the county jail.

ALLEGED BIGAMIST FACES PROSECUTION

Too many cooks, as Raymond Dubois, 42, San Francisco chef, knows, will spoil the broth. And yesterday he learned too many wives can cause a peck of trouble.

Dubois is held in the county jail in Redwood City on a charge of bigamy. Wife No. 2, Mrs. Maudie Lasker Dubois, of 281 Twenty-eighth street, San Francisco, had him arrested. Wife No. 1, Assistant District Attorney Richard O. Bell reports, is Maude McKay Dubois, 3345 Twenty-third street, and No. 3 is Muriel Snyder Dubois.

The man laid his marriage here to No. 2 to liquor, Deputy District Attorney Harold Anderson reported. Dubois was a truck driver with the American army in France and was shell-shocked.

PHANTOM TERRORIST SURRENDERS TO LAW, CONFESSES ASSAULTS

DEATH SENTENCE TWICE PRONOUNCED IN THIS COUNTY

RESULT OF CRIME OCCURING IN LATE 90's

The Redwood City Tribune in a recent issue of the paper made the statement that no one ever hung in San Mateo county. The statement was made in reference to the Haley case when it was said that if Judge Swart would pass sentence of death upon the woman slayer he would be the first to pay the death penalty from San Mateo county. The Tribune is in error.

Two men were hanged at Folsom from this county in 1898. They were Charles Raymond and Harry Winters. These men together with James Willett held up the Grand Hotel at South San Francisco, then known as Baden Station on November 17, 1897. Patrick Ferriter, proprietor, resisted the robbers and was shot. C. A. Andrews and Dick Connally, boarders in the hotel, came to Ferriter's rescue. Andrews was fatally shot, dying some time later and Connally received a slight wound.

Raymond and Winters were arrested and brought to the county jail here. Willett made his get away but some weeks later was captured in Arizona and brought to Redwood City for trial.

Winters and Raymond were defended by Attorney Nagle of San Francisco. A jury on January 22, 1898, brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree, fixing the penalty at death. Shortly after Judge Buck passed sentence. The courtroom was packed with a motley crowd eager to hear the words that would send both slayers to the gallows. The judge was cool and collected as he pronounced the fatal words "That you and each of you be hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy upon your souls." The court fixed the day of execution April 8, 1898.

Raymond was hanged on schedule time, April 8, but Winters secured a stay of execution from the supreme court and some time later was executed at Folsom.

Willetts, on a technicality, escaped the noose but was sentenced to Folsom for life. He died there some years ago.

In the early sixties a Chinaman was sentenced to be hung. The execution was to have taken place in the courtyard in Redwood City. The night before the hanging, the Celestial broke jail and he was never heard of again. It was common rumor at that time that the modest sheriff did not care to have the blood of the accused on his hands and invited him to take French leave. At any rate, the Chinaman was not hung neither was he apprehended.

CRAMER 'THREATS' CALLED 'HOOEY'

"Hooey" and "applesauce" were the descriptive words used by Constable Walter Moore of Pescadero in discounting the stories which appeared in an afternoon peninsula newspaper Tuesday and in the press of San Francisco Wednesday morning to the effect that Joe Cramer, fugitive coast rancher, had threatened to "get" 15 persons before he surrendered.

"Cramer did not make any threats whatever," Constable Moore said.

Moore said the printing of these foundationless stories was needlessly terrorizing the coastside residents.

Sheriff James J. McGrath and Undersheriff Lawrence Nieri, who have kept long vigils with Constable Moore on the coastside to capture Cramer, also declared today that the stories to their knowledge were without foundation.

Orgy Of Gunfire Ends As Rancher Gives Himself Up

Exhausted and hungry from 19 days of hiding out in brush and creekbeds in the San Gregorio hills, Joe Crammer, 30 "phantom" gunman, meekly surrendered several hours before dawn yesterday morning to Constable Walter Moore of Pescadero.

Moore was awakened by the ringing of his front door bell. He went to the door, expecting to hear that Crammer's rifle had "spoken" again, but, to his surprise, the fugitive rancher stood before him.

"My gun is empty," Crammer said. "I want to surrender."

"All right, Joe, I'll be right out," Moore replied.

The constable then opened the door and asked Crammer to take a chair. He took the rifle from him and said, "Here's a cigar; smoke it while I get dressed."

Brought to Redwood City

They then came to Redwood City where Crammer was booked at 3:45 o'clock by Jailer Tim O'Rourke.

Interviewed by newspapermen later, Crammer said the attack on Mrs. Louise Brotherton, San Gregorio widow, who he had struck over the head with a flashlight on February 14, was brought on because he had been "double crossed." He said Bert Anderson, son-in-law of Mrs. Brotherton, was the cause of all his trouble. He said he was leasing the ranch from Mrs. Brotherton and although the lease will run to October 1, they sought to remove him from the premises, according to Crammer.

The fugitive said that trouble has been brewing between himself and Anderson and two Brotherton boys, William and John, whom, he said, carried guns to "get him." Crammer asserted that he had paid the medical bills for the Brothertons and had turned over all his earnings during recent years to them.

Denies Shots Fred

Crammer said his surrender was forced because of the false reports in the newspapers that he had threatened 15 persons and that he had shot at Tony Silva, San Gregorio service station man last Friday. He said he feared that if something happened to someone, he would be blamed. He denied making a single threat, but admitted the assault on Mrs. Brotherton and her daughter, Lottie, 15. He said he was drunk at the time.

Sheriff James J. McGrath, Undersheriff Lawrence Nieri, Richard O. Bell, assistant, and Harold F. Anderson, deputy, both of District Attorney Edmund Scott's office, questioned Crammer and the girl, Lottie, this morning.

Girl in Hospital

Miss Brotherton is still in the Community Hospital with head and hand injuries. She said that Crammer came to her mother's bedroom early on the morning of February 14, and after an argument over a flashlight which Crammer alleges Anderson took, he struck the woman for siding with her son-in-law. The girl was struck for the same reason, she said.

When blood flowed from Mrs. Brotherton's wound, Crammer told the girl, she said: "God, I'm going to hang."

After failing to get the girl to go with him he hit her with a pipe, she said.

Crammer is held for assault and may face also a statutory charge, Anderson said.

NEW POST OFFICE PLANS ABANDONED

Redwood City's $115,000 post office building, which it was hoped would be started during this session of congress, cannot be constructed because of the lack of funds in the federal treasury.

Woodside

The current number of Sunset Magazine features photographs and a description of Villa St. Roch, the home place of Miss Marjorie Josselyn in the Woodside hills. Set back a mile by private road from the highway, on a knoll rising above West Union creek, this architectural gem is not to be seen by the casual visitor to Woodside, but the perfect balance of its parts, the steep roofs and half-timbered exterior walls, the charming old fashioned garden that surrounds it are all reminiscent of a Normandy countryside and are not soon forgotten by one who has had the privilege of visiting there.

New York has been drawing too heavily upon our local population of late. A few weeks ago, Stanley Harris and family left their home here to make their permanent residence in New York, and now Herbert Gallagher has announced his intention of moving to the metropolis. We are very sorry to lose citizens of this kind from Woodside.

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Fleishacker spent the last week-end at their home here. It is their intention to come down each week-end until the middle of April when they will definitely open their house for the summer season.

The new home being constructed for Matthew Harris of Atherton is nearing completion and Mr. Harris plans to take possession within the next two or three weeks. This place lies in the hills to the north of the Menlo Country Club property and although not strictly within the limits of Woodside, it stands so close to our boundary that we shall proceed to claim him as a resident.

Mr. and Mrs. William Roth and family, lately returned from a trip through the canal and to Honolulu on the new Mariposa, visited their home here on Sunday. They too will soon be down for the summer.

Mrs. Lawrence Harris was hostess at a luncheon on Friday last given in honor of Miss Marion Kerby who is visiting in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Jackling prospected the trails of the Woodside Trail Club on their favorite mounts on Sunday last. The stables of the Trail Club will soon be opened and the devotees of horseback riding will have their innings.

Miss Marjorie Wyllie, supervisor from the State Teachers' College at San Jose, was a visitor at the Woodside School on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Whitson and family of nine children are newcomers to Woodside. They are building a home for themselves on the Canyada road at the upper end of the Leonard and Holt tract.

John Volpiano, assistant fire chief, has recovered from the attack of typhoid from which he has been suffering since the first of November last and expects to return to his duties at the fire house within a week.

The Parent-Teacher Association met in its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the school auditorium. In honor of arbor day a tree was planted in the school yard with appropriate ceremony.

Miss May Huddart, superintendent of the Woodside Sunday School, has begun to drill her charges in preparation for the Easter services which at this church are always conducted by the children.

Two new members were installed by the Woodside Volunteer Fire Department on Wednesday evening, Tom Shine and Bernard Bernasque. After the business meeting, an elaborate feed was served in honor of the new members.

Adolph Hoerter, an employe of James V. Neuman on his ranch across the mountain ridge, suffered a broken leg on Wednesday when struck by a falling bale of hay. Andrew Loushin rendered first aid and brought the injured man to the hospital.

Mrs. A. B. Swinnerton entertained twenty of her friends from San Francisco and the peninsula at luncheon on Saturday.

Miss Florence Johnson, principal at Portola School, took her charges to visit the packing houses in South San Francisco on Wednesday.

Minerva Moore, 4-H club girl of Mt. Vernon, Ky., produced 2,020 pounds of tobacco on an acre and made a profit of $275.

I. M. Peckham Visits County Court House

I. M. Peckham, assistant United States District Attorney, San Francisco, greeted friends at the courthouse yesterday. Some few years ago the young man made the race for the appellate bench in this district and carried this county by an overwhelming vote and came in a few votes of winning. Since then Peckham has had a kindly feeling for the citizens of San Mateo county. Mr. Peckham is now a resident of Burlingame.

CHAPTER VI

A Silver Night

As we marched along my mind was filled with sad uncertanties, grim forbodings, regrets for half-accomplished tasks. I would have liked to live to see the independence of Venezuela, and I found myself wishing that I might have been spared to meet the Liberator, Simon Bolivar, the extraordinary man who had installed in the hearts of his people a deathless love of independence.

And I wanted to see the Senorita again, to tell her of my love. How could she have ocvered up so completely all the signs of her escape? The city of Caracas was new to her. To have left Caracas would have been to leave a trail that anyone might have followed, and to have secreted herself in the city. . . . The thing was impossible, for the men of La Torre could have searched every corner of it in an hour. Even Polito was in the dark.

As we approacned the menage of Pedro Carrizal sounds of hilarity came from the interior—loud laughter and snatches of song.

We had come opposite when the door flew open and a man stood, swaying, in the lighted way. When he saw us he uttered a wild yell and toppled forward to the sidewalk. Even as the soldiers roared in high glee over the fall of the tipsy celebrant a torrent of men poured from the opened doorway and fell upon my guards before they could bring their guns to bear.

I turned to meet Adolfo, whose pistol pointed at my head. My outflung fingers found his wrist, and thrust his arm high as he sent a harmless bullet into the air, then I drove my fist into his broad face. Ah, the tingling joy it gave me! He went down and I threw myself upon him, fingers groping for his throat.

Adolfo cried aloud, he swore, he gasped, he writhed. He clawed vainly at my wrists, and kicked, and twisted his unwielding body. I heard a shrill voice shreking anathemas, a rasping voice that was my own, and it gave me a grevous shock that I had fallen so low.

Hands were laid upon my shoulders, dragging me from my victim. "Let me alone," I cried, "let me kill him!"

"No, Senor."

"Manuel!" I leaped to my feet.

"Come—come quickly." He caught my arm and led me away.

"But we must help them."

He laughed shortly. "Not at all, they need no help; it is the soldiers who will be crying for aid."

We ran swiftly for three minutes and stopped in a darkened alley where Manuel opened a package which had been secreted under a shed, disclosing a uniform. "Put it on quickly, Senor; in two minutes you must be a captain in his majesty's service."

I laughed softly, for I saw another chance at life, and another chance to win the glorious Lamartina. "If Bolivar has many men like you, Manuel—"

We turned toward the south and ran for half a mile, stopping at last in the gloom afforded by a tall adobe building. Here we found two horses, one saddled for travel, and the other already bearing a man. "Polito!" I cried, for the rider's head and throat were almost concealed by the folds of a bandage.

His shoulders shook, in silent laughter I supposed, and he whispered something unintelligible and gestured toward the other horse.

"But, Polito, my friend," I objected, "you cannot do this thing. It will wreck your career, and—you owe me no sacrifice. I cannot let you; rather would I seek the firing squad."

The gauntleted hand that Polito put upon my shoulder shook a little. He tried to speak, gasped, caught at his throat, and went off into a convulsion of coughing.

Manuel spoke, deep earnestness in his voice: "You must do as we suggest, Senor, for many things of importance depend upon it. We plan a swift stroke, Senor, and your assistance is necessary in our planning. Besides, you owe your life to those who follow Bolivar. Have not a score of men this night jeopardized their lives for thee? Have not I?"

Now I was ashamed, for the crafty Manuel spoke only truth. "Yes, my friend," said I. I threw a leg over the horse, and the swarthy sailor proffered a pistol, which I pocketed. I put a hand on his shoulder. "If Bolivar needs another arm, Senor, he will find mine strong enough, and very willing indeed, for I owe him much."

"Viva!" said the sailor. "Point your horses toward the Southern Cross and ride throughout the night; ride swiftly, for the mounts you have are the best this city affords. Sunrise should find you beyond Ocumare, where the lines of Bolivar begin, and where you will find safety. Now, adios . . . A pleasant trip to both of you!

With the flaming Southern cross to point the way, with the glory of the full moon, the open country ahead, a fine horse between my knees, and a companion . . . well, perhaps my companion did lack necessary companionable qualities. Yet I could attribute some of his silence to his cold and the rest of it to the black thoughts that must possess him, for no man turns his back upon his country with a light heart.

With a sidelong glance I studied the lithe figure that even the black and gray cloak could not entirely hide.

"A perfect night, Polito, eh?"

He nodded.

"You are silent, my friend."

He turned his head to give me one swift look, then regarded the road again.

"I must thank you, Polito, for the part you took in my escape this night. Adolfo planned to have me shot tomorrow morning, so my life is yours."

This brought a gasp—no more—and I tried again: "Do you know my friend," I ventured, "where your sister is?"

"A sort of sacrifice, my friend, for what she imagines I have done for her; a thing that makes me love her very much."

"But she would not—" he said.

"Not now, there is no need. Besides," now I laughed, "Adolfo will marry no one tomorrow, Polito, nor the day after, nor for many days, because the proud Colonel will never go into the cathedral and stand up before the people of Caracas with the face that he will be wearing tomorrow."

Polito put out a gauntleted hand. "What?" he questioned. "You have—?"

"I have done everything but kill him, my friend, and Manuel and his courageous intrigants stayed me just in time. Something in my blood calls for his life. We are proud, Polito, and he has called me ladrone. In New Orleans did he not try to kill me?"

Polito nodded, and many weary miles were put behind us before another word was spoken. The moon was yet an hour above the crest of the Carabobo hills when we passed through the sleeping hamlet of Cua and, turning our horses toward the southeast, took the broad road that led to Ocumare. From Ocumare we went south again, between fields of cane and maize, and of melons, barely visible in the graying dawn.

Preserve the Natural Beauty Offered by Butano Forest

The movement, sponsored by the Native Sons, to preserve Butano forest, located in the southern end of the county, is finding popular response throughout the state particularly with those who love trees and the open spaces. Everywhere the proposition is becoming popular. The most influential men and women of California are behind it and are working to secure the necessary funds to purchase the vast stand of virgin timber, the finest in northern California.

The forest of giant redwoods consists of ten thousand acres, all in San Mateo county, and within an hour and a half's ride from San Francisco. In time it would, if preserved, become the great playground of the city and bay region. Not to buy this property at this time would be a tragic and distinct loss to future generations who would enjoy these beautiful trees, ages old, intended by the Creator for the enjoyment of mandkind.

Fremont Older, editor of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, visited the forest last week and here is how he writes of the giant trees:

"On the way out we stopped to pay our respects to the oldest living inhabitants of California and of the world, the great sempervirens (always living), some of them older than recorded history. Our guide, Mr. Lathrop, led us a short distance from the road and introduced us to the king of the Butano forest. Fifty feet in circumference, this great giant rises three hundred feet so that the sun may touch him with its life giving force. Experts say the king is three thousand years old. He was in his youth when Caesar invaded England, when Greek civilization was in its infancy, and was still young when Rome rose to power and conquered Greece. He was young when America was discovered, and when Washington freed her. In fact, so far as I could see he is young today. I couldn't detect anywhere a blemish on his noble body. He is still growing. As our little party stood looking up at him I thought how insignificant we were. I had never before felt so much like a worm. I wondered if he were conscious of us, or feared us. Or did he pity us? With all his age, and size, and strength, and grandeur, he was helpless before us. We could chop him down and make lumber of him. He must have missed some of his big "green brothers," who, for centuries, lived near him. Did he know we had destroyed them to make little houses for ourselves? That oldest living inhabitant stands there, silent, serene and beautiful, with his head in the sun.

As I left him, it made me sad to think what greedy man with his axe could do to him. I hope the State of California will adopt him and protect him and all of his beautiful brothers.

Within a period of eight months fire again visited the home of Mrs. Evelyn Partee at 1180 Arbor avenue early Sunday morning. The blaze started under the roof and damaged the attic and portions of the dwelling near the chimney. The Menlo Park fire department was early on the scene and through heroic efforts managed to save the building. The damage will amount to about $1500, partly covered by insurance. The two fires destroyed nearly all of Mrs. Partee's precious mementos gathered in childhood. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Miss Dorothy Bower entertained 17 Hayward friends Saturday evening. After a canoe ride on Lagunito, the party assembled at Miss Bower's home in Menlo Park for dinner and bridge.

CITIZENS COMMITTEE DRAFTS CANDIDATES FOR CITY COUNCIL

W. H. Weeden, mayor of Menlo Park who has been a member of the city council since the city's incorporation, and Edward Hutson Hart, for ten years a leading citizen of this community, were unanimously proclaimed candidates for the city council at a citizens meeting at the parish hall Saturday night.

It is estimated that more than one hundred enthusiastic residents from all sections of the city attended the meeting to inaugurate the campaign for the election of progressive, capable councilmen on April 11. Dennis E. O'Keefe acted as chairman.

At the conclusion of the meeting plans were announced for a further mass meeting at 8 o'clock next Monday evening at the Parish Hall on behalf of the candidacies of Mayor Weeden and Mr. Hart.

Mr. O'Keefe opened Saturday's meeting with the announcement that two vacancies on the city council would occur in April by virtue of the expiration of the terms of Mayor Weeden and Councilman Blake, and called for nominations from the floor.

Mr. K. L. Martin responded, recounting the progress of the city under the leadership of Mayor Weeden. "I feel it is our duty," he said, "to retain in office a man who has so successfully filled the office of mayor, and I take great pleasure in renominating Mayor Weeden, who for the past four years has in every way proved himself worthy of this trust." The nomination was greeted with cheers and applause.

The nomination of Mr. Hart immediately followed. Speaking in behalf of Mr. Hart, Mr. L. C. Macabee, instructor in engineering at the Menlo Junior College, stated: "It is now my provilege to name for your consideration a man who for the past ten years has been a member of this community and interested in its affairs. He is a graduate of Wosford College of South Carolina and received his master's degree at Stanford University. He is now in charge of the science department and is instructor in biology, chemistry and physics at Menlo School and Junior College. He is the father of two young sons. I know of no man who is better fitted to serve this city as one of its councilmen, and I take great pleasure in nominating for that office, Edward H. Hart."

The nomination met with unanimous approval and was persistantly applauded.

As Mayor Weeden arose to accept his nomination, the audience came to its feet and greeted him with an ovation which lasted several minutes. He addressed the meeting at length, telling of his life in Menlo Park from boyhood days, relating many amusing incidents which his hearers greatly enjoyed. Again the mayor pledged his support for the advancement of his home city. "Whatever the people want, I am with them," he said. "I shall be with the people, for the people and by the people at all times."

Mr. Hart emphasized in accepting the nomination he had "no ax to grind." "I consent to become a candidate in the hope that I may better serve my community," he said. "I have two sons of whom I am very proud, and if I can do anything to better Menlo Park for them and for your sons and daughters, that will be my aim. It will be my endeavor to do what is best for our city and to carry out the will of the majority in working for the good of Menlo Park. I hope that the majority will co-operate to put Menlo Park on the map. There was a time when uncomplimentary things were said about our city, but now we have the compliments coming. There has been a great deal of improvement but there is room for a great deal more. We have an ideal location, we have an ideal climate, we have good soil, we have good people, and we have here the making of one of the best towns in the state."

Mr. Hart stated that he believed in keeping all fault-finders busy by giving them some specific job to attend to. "I would like to see a good first class organization in Menlo Park that includes everyone," he said. "We all have one common idea—to work for the advancement of Menlo Park."

Among others who addressed the meeting were Raymond Perry, Frank Whipple, Fred Ingram, Miss Sarah Frey, Judge Hoss, Norman Scofield, and F. W. MacDonald. They were unanimous in their congratulation of Mayor Weeden on his past record, stating that his greatest concern has always been the betterment of Menlo Park, and calling attention to the fact that the improvement of streets, the reduction of city taxes, and the furtherance of unemployment relief have all been to his credit. They were equally enthusiastic in their expressions of confidence in Mr. Hart and heartily endorsed his candidacy.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your headaches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.
